1. COURSE OBJECTIVES

Every individual has the human right to live with dignity and freedom. For all around development it is imperative that human beings be provided with basic necessities of food, clothing and shelter along with education, health care, protection against violence and access to justice. Unfortunately a large section of the world population constitutes of people who are refugees, stateless persons and internally displaced persons who are denied basic human rights. As per the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees 25.9 million refugees have fled from conflict or persecution. People within their own country though under the protection of their government are displaced owing to human rights violations, armed conflict and natural disasters. According to Internal Displacement Monitoring Centre at the end of 2018, 41.3 million people have been internally displaced. Forced displacements of nationals within their own country make them susceptible to unimaginable exploitation and discrimination. Being denied of nationality by any country renders people stateless who face difficulties in even accessing basic rights and endure lifelong obstacles. Another global phenomenon that is growing in scope, complexity and impact is that of international migration which has drawn the attention of the world community to frame new policies for dealing with concerns arising out of such migration patterns in ever expanding globalizing world. Refugees run from their home; Internally Displaced Persons are on the run at home and Stateless persons have no home.

Against this backdrop the course has been designed to explore and examine these vulnerable sections of the world population in the context of their status, rights, causes and consequences and to critically discuss about refugees, stateless persons, internally displaced persons and international migration within the framework of international, regional and Indian perspective.

The objectives of the course are:

- i. To develop comprehensive understanding about the concepts of refugee, stateless person, internally displaced persons and migration.
- ii. To familiarize students with the international and regional legal framework relating to refugees, stateless persons and internally displaced persons.
- iii. To study the causes and consequences of statelessness, internal displacement and migration.
- iv. To explain elaborately the significance and relevance of the law relating to refugee, stateless person, internally displaced persons and migration in contemporary times.
- v. To discuss the role of United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.
- vi. To acquaint students with the existing international standards relating to migration.
- vii. To critically examine the position of India with regard to refugees, stateless persons, internally displaced persons and migration.

2. TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The teaching methodology shall aim at the generation of critical thinking among the students. For teaching Refugee Law lecture method along with alternative and supplementary strategies for effective teaching will be utilized, such as permissive style of teaching, brain storming, group discussion, seminar presentation. To develop an understanding on varied topics of refugee law group discussion and brain-storming sessions will be held in the classroom. To encourage self study, individualized instruction and to inculcate study attitudes individual seminar topics shall be allotted to students in advance. The teacher will guide the students in their pursuit of legal learning through application of the planned teaching process which includes introduction of the basic concept, presentation and discussion of the subject-matter in details, recapitulation on the topic discussed through questioning, clarification of doubts and queries, if any, and suggestions for further readings. The topic for a particular class shall be informed to the students before hand and readings shall be assigned to them for the said topic. They are expected to have a basic idea about the topic prior to the class. Subsequent to a lecture on the topic, there shall be class discussion on the same as well as on the readings assigned. Pursuant to the class discussion, the teacher shall substantiate the issues raised and answer any questions posed or left unanswered. The topics will be taught through projected teaching aids like power point presentation and white board.

3. COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES

At the completion of the course, it is humbly expected that the students shall:

1. Understand the nuances of each module and comprehend the intricacies of the international and regional legal framework on refugees, stateless persons, internally displaced persons and international migration.
